

Invitation to investors and family offices:

Megatrend longevity – how to get exposure early

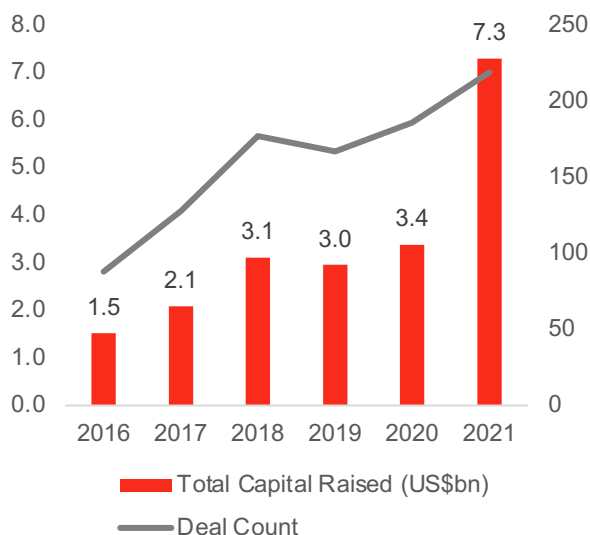

When the world is full of uncertainty and markets are volatile, identifying megatrends early is a time-tested way to ensure long-term investment success.

Longevity is one such megatrend that is on the brink of going mainstream as scientific research advances and governments worldwide take note, spawning a plethora of investment opportunities and exponential rewards for those who were early.

$7.3bn was invested into longevity companies last year - doubling the amount invested in the previous year. Longevity has fast become a distinct investment category:

You have no doubt heard of billionaires like Jeff Bezos and Larry Page investing in startups dedicated to longevity science. What is little known is that for family offices there are already many ways to get exposure to the sector.

LongeVC and LongevityTechnology are hosting an invitation-only reception for family offices at Pasley-Tyler in the heart of Mayfair: you are invited; it would be a pleasure to meet you.

Date/time: 06 December 2022, 6.00-7.30pm

Location: Pasley-Tyler, 42 Berkeley Square, Mayfair, London W1J 5AW

Format: Champagne reception, networking, short presentations from key opinion leaders

RSVP: Please register here (link)

This is a complimentary event, kindly supported by the general partners of:

Longevity investment is particularly well suited to private investors and family offices due to their patient investment horizons, ESG goals, and the double dividend of investment returns and the gift of personal healthspan for friends and family.
